

The departments of history and contemporary society and psychology have developed five broad goals.

1. Students will be prepared for graduate study. This preparation will include a knowledge base in their chosen discipline(s), analytical and critical thinking skill, and study/research skills.
2. Students will develop interpersonal skills necessary for professional careers, including oral and written communication and understanding human behavior.
3. Students will grow in their understanding of the historical and social contexts of their lives and of the institutions in which they live.
4. Students will learn how to integrate disciplinary knowledge with Evangelical Christian faith.
5. Students will develop a "World Christian" perspective, which means they develop the ability to work in cross-cultural settings, as well as understanding how their lives and ministries fit into world missions.

In special cases, courses other than those listed below may be used as cognates or electives in the major and/or minor with documented approval of the student's academic advisor, the department chair and the dean of the School of Business and Social Sciences.

A limit of two graduate courses may be used as undergraduate cognates. Permission must be obtained from the academic advisor, dean and course instructor.

History & Contemporary Society

The department of history and contemporary society encourages and helps its majors to achieve the following goals:

- Acquire the specialized knowledge, the study and research skills specific to their discipline or major, and the analytical and critical thinking abilities expected of all liberal arts graduates.
- Grow in their capacity to present ideas and arguments in a persuasive manner, both in public speaking and in writing.
- Acquire a greater understanding of the historical, social and institutional contexts of current events (i.e., trends and developments in international affairs, politics, culture, economy and thought).
- Articulate the ways in which Christians have sought to integrate disciplinary knowledge with personal faith and theology.
- Explore what it means to approach their scholarly and professional identities from a "World Christian" perspective.
